

INNOCENT EYES

...things once seen, can NEVER be unseen

“Social Networking sites are popular online places where kids express themselves, keep in contact with friends, and post personal profiles describing who they are and their interests. Parents as well as pre-teens/teens MUST become aware of the potential risks.”

Join us for a parent/child workshop where special agents who have investigated cybercrimes in our area, use real life cases and experiences to warn about the dangers lurking online. Take advantage of the opportunity to have your child “HEAR” what you have warned them about from someone other than their parents.

ONE TEXT ...ONE POST ...ONE VIDEO.....a lifetime effect

DANGERS of SOCIAL MEDIA

- 37% of social media users will say things online they would NEVER say in person
- Internet predators use social networking sites to contact and establish relationships with children.
- Kids often add new “friends” even if they don’t know these people in person in an attempt to gain “likes”.
- Teens post too much personal information unknowingly which can make them an easy target.
